Darling Frances:

Received your darling letter of the 9th & was very sorry to read that you think I don't love you because you didn't receive a letter from me on Saturday. I thought you knew that if I didn't write, it simply was impossible for me to do so, so I'll try my best to let you have a letter from me every day.

Sweetheart, I received a part of a phone call in my uncle's case. They offer a settlement to clear up everything & if the creditors accept, it simply means that my fee will be considerably less. If I make $100 or $200 at the return, I'll be lucky. After paying my debts which amount to practically $75 which must be paid as soon as I get the money, you see I won't be able to come home. I had intended that if I come home we might get married. Anyhow, I'll have to wait until to-morrow & probably I'll find out at that time how much I'll get. If I make $200, I may come home for 4 weeks.

I was very sorry to hear that your sister still suffers from her throat. I sincerely hope that the pain will leave her & very soon too.

I wish you would be more careful, dear. It seems you don't love me anymore, for if you did, you wouldn't be falling & hurting yourself. Please do take care of yourself, won't you? It is needless for me to reiterate my statements that I love you. You know I do, & I am only hoping that I can be with you to show you I do. I dream of you & think of you day & night. Everything I do, ~~too~~ is done with the sense that I'm doing it for you. Don't that show you that I love you & love you with all my heart?

I didn't do much last Sunday: went to a few picture shows & then at night, went home & read until about 12 30. I sure did enjoy that bit I read. It was a book called "Lectures" which is given in conjunction with the "Harvard Classics".

Well, darling, I'll have to close now, as I'm busy with the referee in bankruptcy. To-morrow's the ordeal. The first meeting of creditors is on & am so dog-gone anxious to know what's going to happen.

With all my love to my sweetheart who has so many fascinating young doctors around, & heaps of kisses,

Lovingly
Joe.
